

Online safety training to change attitude of apprentices

People and Quality Solutions (PaQs), a registered training organisation, has launched a new online safety course to change the attitudes of apprentices.

Young people are almost one-and-a-half times more likely to be injured at work than the average worker, and the statistics show that more than 70% of these cases occur within the first year of employment, according to PaQS.

The course has evolved from the original, a competency-based course in Advanced Safety Awareness (ASA).

The ASA course has been designed and developed to fit into safety induction programs for trainees and apprentices.

The course is designed to develop young workers' attitude towards safety, as well as their confidence and self esteem.

According to PaQS senior psychologist and founder, Carl Reams, the PaQS ethos is founded on a new theory of personal safety management in Australia, targeting human error by developing and enhancing individual safety thinking and responsibility.

PaQs's course is designed to develop young workers' attitudes towards safety.

People and Quality Solutions 02 4949 4500, www.paqs.com.au